
San Francisco International Airport (SFO)

Airport Information

San Francisco International Airport, located south of San Francisco, serves that city, the Silicon Valley and the wider Bay Area. One of America's busiest airports, it handles both domestic flights and international connections for the Pacific Rim, Europe and Latin America.

San Francisco International has four terminals, three of which handle domestic and Canada-bound flights, while the final terminal is the recently constructed international terminal. An internal transit system, AirTrain, links the entire airport.
